Tagged Fixture

Part 1

Section 1.1

A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs.

A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs.

A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs.

Section 1.2

A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs.

A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs.

A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running

headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs.

- First point
- Second point

Part 2

Section 2.1

A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs.

A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs.

A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs.

Section 2.2

A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs.

A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs.

A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs.

- First point
- Second point

Part 3

Section 3.1

A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs.

A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs.

A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs.

Section 3.2

A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs.

A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs.

A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs. A tagged document carries its own structure: headings, paragraphs and lists are marked as such, so a reader can reflow it without guessing. Running headers and footers are marked as artifacts and should never show up between paragraphs.

- First point
- Second point